2. Period of Validity; Extension and Re-Issuance — A Special Work Permit (SWP) shall be valid for a period determined by the Commission on Immigration and Deportation (CID) as necessary for the temporary visitor to engage in his non-immigrant business, but not to exceed the authorized stay of the temporary visitor. It may be further extended provided the application is made prior to its expiration and the aggregate continuous period of validity does not exceed 1 year and 59 days, or the temporary visitor's authorized stay, whichever comes first. The period of validity of an SWP continues to run despite the absence of the temporary visitor from the Philippines and no expired segment thereof is reinstated upon his re-entry.

A temporary visitor who was previously granted an SWP which has since expired, may re-apply for the issuance of a new SWP provided (a) the bases for the grant of an SWP enumerated in Law Instructions No. 27 continue to exist, and (b) he is not engaged in employment which requires him to obtain a pre-arranged employment visa.

3. Fees — An application for an SWP shall be assessed a fee of P300.00. An SWP which is issued with an initial validity in excess of 3 months or which is extended beyond the initial validity shall be assessed an additional fee of P100.00 per month. An overtime fee of P200.00 shall be assessed for Express Lane Service. If a single application covers more than one applicant, only a single overtime fee shall be assessed. Under the Express Lane Service, an application received between 8:00-11:30 a.m. shall be released on the same day. That received in the afternoon shall be released in the morning of the following day. Under regular processing, an application shall be acted upon and released within three working days.

4. Alien Journalist — Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions, an alien journalist or a foreign correspondent pursuing his profession in the country, shall be granted an indefinite SWP for as long as he remains accredited with the International Press Center.
