EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Regulations, which come into operation on the first day of May, 1961, amend the Measuring Instruments (Liquid Fuel and Lubricating Oil) Regulations (Northern Ireland), 1931, under which (inter alia) an inspector who has withdrawn liquid fuel or lubricating oil from a tank or container for testing a measuring instrument is required to return it into that tank or container.

These Regulations enable the inspector to place the fuel or oil in another receptacle provided for that purpose by the trader or the person in charge of the instrument, if the inspector thinks it is impracticable and undesirable to return it to the original tank or container or the trader or the person in charge of the instrument does not wish him to do so.
