EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the regulations but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

The School Health Service Regulations (Northern Ireland), 1948, provided that health authorities should arrange for the dental inspection of school-children within twelve months after their admission to school and within the twelve months before their reaching school-leaving age and at other intervals as directed by the Ministry or determined by the health authority with the Ministry's approval.

The foregoing regulations modify these requirements and provide instead that there should be dental inspection of pupils within two years of their entering school and at such intervals thereafter as are directed by the Ministry or determined by the health authority with the Ministry's approval.
