EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Regulations amend the Road Vehicles Lighting Regulations (Northern Ireland), 1958. The principal changes are:

1. The requirements as to the minimum height from the ground at which front lamps must be fixed on mechanically propelled vehicles first registered after the 1st January, 1952, are varied by reducing that height from two feet two inches to two feet.

2. Obligatory rear lamps and reflectors carried on vehicles first registered on or after the 1st April, 1960, or on vehicles, not subject to registration, which are supplied by their manufacturers after that date are required to be marked with the approximate specification number of the British Standards Institution and with certain other specified particulars. Obligatory reflectors carried on other vehicles are required to be similarly marked after the 1st October, 1967.

3. Obligatory rear lamps and reflectors are, in the case of certain goods vehicles, to be attached to their loads instead of to the vehicles.
