FOREWORD

The Statistical Development Series is a sequence of comprehensive technical manuals on various aspects of the statistical programmes which make up a national information system for food and agriculture. Emphasis in these manuals is placed on the standardization of concepts and efforts to integrate statistical programmes and minimize duplications.

The organization of agricultural censuses is one of the important parts of national programmes and is the subject of a separate publication entitled Programme for the 1990 World Census of Agriculture. Following the recommendations of regional statistical Statutory Bodies of FAO, regional supplements are prepared to provide recommendations on subjects particular to individual regions. The present volume is the Supplement for Near East.

PART I

PURPOSES AND CONTEXT

Introduction

1. FAO Statistical Development Series No. 2, Programme for the 1990 World Census of Agriculture (FAO, Rome 1986) hereafter called the World Programme (WP), has been prepared for use in all countries of the world. However, particular considerations may apply within different regional groupings of countries across the world. The purpose of this Near East Supplement to the WP is to detail the considerations that are likely to apply to countries within the Near East Region. The countries of the Near East Region (with the exception of the petroleum producing countries) are similar in that they are heavily dependent on the agricultural sector; however, despite the importance of agriculture, agricultural statistics are not well developed.

2. For the purposes of the census of agriculture, the Near East Region is defined as comprising the following countries:

Afghanistan	Kuwait	Somalia
Algeria	Lebanon	Sudan
Bahrain	Libya	Syria
Cyprus	Mauritania	Tunisia
Djibouti	Morocco	Turkey
Egypt	Oman	United Arab Emirates
Iran, Islamic Republic of	Pakistan	Yemen Arab Republic
Iraq	Qatar	Yemen, People's
Jordan	Saudi Arabia, Kingdom of	Dem. Republic of
