MANAGING PRIVATE INVESTMENT IN NATURAL RESOURCES:
A Primer for Pro-Poor Growth and Environmental Sustainability

The Poverty-Environment Initiative (PEI) of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) is a global UN effort that supports country-led efforts to mainstream poverty-environment linkages into national development planning. The PEI provides financial and technical assistance to government partners to set up institutional and capacity-strengthening programmes and carry out activities to address the particular poverty-environment context.

Managing Private Investment in Natural Resources: A Primer for Pro-Poor Growth and Environmental Sustainability is also available online at www.unpei.org.

Preface

This primer was prepared with funding from the Poverty-Environment Initiative (PEI). PEI is a joint programme of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) to provide financial and technical support to countries to build capacity for mainstreaming poverty-environment linkages into national development planning processes, such as poverty reduction strategy papers and Millennium Development Goal (MDG) achievement strategies. The PEI is supported by the governments of Belgium, Denmark, Ireland, Norway, Spain, Sweden, the United Kingdom, the United States of America and by the European Commission. More information can be found at www.unpei.org.

This primer was prepared by Nikolai (Nick) Beresnev, Lorenzo Cotula, Lucy Emerton and Paul Steele, with funding from the UNDP-UNEP PEI. We would like to thank Biplove Choudhary (UNDP Asia-Pacific Regional Centre) and Oshani Perera (International Institute for Sustainable Development) for their comprehensive peer reviews, and acknowledge the valuable input of other UN colleagues.

We would also like to thank Karen Holmes and Nita Congress for their efforts in editing and design.

The primer is designed to be tested at the country level. Feedback from country practitioners is useful in improving its content. Any comments or enquiries are welcome and should be directed to:
