FOREWORD

The publication of the 2019 / 2020 PIDA Progress Report takes place at a critical time when the world has been thrust into a crisis due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Africa has been disproportionately affected due to policy and structural gaps that have exposed her lack of resilience to such shocks. This has and will continue in the near term, to adversely affect the continent's plan to realise the much-needed developmental goals and aspirations in many areas including, in our context, attainment of key continental infrastructure goals. COVID-19 is expected to significantly widen fiscal deficits across the continent, making infrastructure financing harder to come by. The pandemic will likely set most large-scale development projects back in the short-tomedium term. However, with every problem, there is an opportunity. The pandemic presents an opportunity to re-shape the state of the world for years to come and for the better through adjusting our policy frameworks and development models. For PIDA, it means we pivot infrastructure implementation, so that it is not only responsive to our needs, but also builds the necessary resilience against such shocks. Resilience emphasises the importance of recovery and adaptation in the aftermath of disruption.

Despite this complex evolving context, the PIDA programme has entered a critical transition point. We are marking ten years of the implementation of the first phase of the PIDA programme (also known as PIDA PAP I) and its transition to the second Phase of the Programme (PIDA PAP II). Drawing from the lessons learned, PIDA PAP II, is anchored on two central pillars:

An Integrated Corridor Approach concept that ensures that all related corridor infrastructure, link to and complement each other, and

The integration of inclusivity, social and sustainability features into the planning process mirroring the AU Agenda 2063 vision, in order to realise the full socio-economic development impact of regional projects.

FOREWORD (CONTINUED)

The priority list of projects selected after a rigorous process based on the new criterion, is on track to be approved by the Heads of States during the AU Summit in February after the recent validation by the recent Ministerial STC meeting that took place on the 12th of January 2021. It is our firm belief that with the redefined approach we will see accelerated implementation of key infrastructure projects.

On 1st of January 2021 our continent marked a historic milestone as trading under the African Continental Free Trade Area (AfCFTA) kicked off. Whilst Africa has always traded amongst herself, intra Africa trade has been fraught with many challenges including logistical and trade barriers to name a few. At 16.6% of total trade, as a percentage of total African exports, intra African Trade remains low compared to other continents. The AfCFTA is expected to redefine intra African trade as it creates the largest single market in the globe. However, there are fundamental aspects that must be in place to enable this to happen. One key component is the requisite infrastructure. Therefore, developing robust infrastructure is crucial to its operationalisation and success of the AfCFTA. Member States must be seamlessly connected physically and digitally through hard infrastructure and connected in the harmonisation and coordination of processes through soft infrastructure. The Integrated Corridor Approach is expected to ensure that all related corridor infrastructure, link to and complement each other as a critical enabler of the AfCFTA.

This report provides a broad update of the implementation of PIDA to date. I thank our partners and stakeholders for their continued commitment to the PIDA programme. We value your continued support that will help us achieve concrete results and ensure PIDA becomes the most transformative African development programme.
