INTRODUCING AUGMENTED REALITY

Reading long pages of a report can get a bit monotonous. This is why the UNFPA-UNICEF Global Programme to Accelerate Action to End Child Marriage have introduced the innovation of augmented reality in our 2018 annual report. Augmented reality is a technology that combines virtual reality with the real world in the form of live video imagery that is digitally enhanced with computer-generated graphics. This technology adds digital elements and additional content to a live view, by simply scanning or viewing an image through the camera of a smartphone. Augmented reality enables us to give you more information about the Global Programme and our activities in 2018, to engage your senses with motion and to deliver the data and statistics to you with a story. In this way we hope to make it more exciting to read our annual report, as it becomes an interactive experience where the objects that reside in the real world are “augmented”.

This is how to do it:

- 1 Download the “HP Reveal” app from App Store or Google Play.
The first time you open the app you will be asked to enable location and create an account.
- 2 Follow our channel.
Use the search field in the app to find the GPChildMarriage channel and choose ‘follow’.
- 3 Launch the camera in the app.
Tap the blue button at the bottom of the app to open the camera. When asked, allow HP Reveal to access your camera so you can scan images.
- 4 Scan the trigger image.
Hold your phone over the picture marked with the augmented reality logo. The augmented reality content will appear on your screen in the app above the trigger image.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Trends in child marriage

Over the past decade, the prevalence of child marriage has continued to decline. Globally in that period, the proportion of women who were married as children decreased by 15 per cent, from 1 in 4 to about 1 in 5 women. It is now estimated that a total of 650 million women alive today were married as children. However, the current rate of decline in child marriage is not sufficient to meet the Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) target of ending child marriage by 2030; at this rate it would take 50 years to eliminate child marriage worldwide. The reduction in child marriage has been uneven. While South Asia has led the way on reducing child marriage, the global burden is shifting to sub-Saharan Africa, where rates of progress need to be scaled up dramatically to offset population growth.

Global Programme approach

To achieve lasting change at significant scale, the Global Programme continued through 2018 to build government ownership and commitment towards ending child marriage within its 12 focus countries. An emphasis on promoting multisectoral approaches resulted in 3 out of those 12 countries increasing the number of geographic areas where UNFPA and UNICEF are working together; all 12 diversified their efforts to leverage the capacities and resources of other sectors, institutions, platforms and systems. The Global Programme currently works with 364 implementing partners (up from 236 in 2017).

Outcomes and headline results

Overall, the Global Programme is on track and most output targets were achieved or exceeded, sometimes significantly. The output results show that the programme is beginning to reach larger populations of adolescent girls and community members.

EMPOWERMENT OF ADOLESCENT GIRLS: Countries have reached twice as many adolescent girls than the target figure with life skills and empowerment interventions and school-based education. Countries are improving their monitoring systems to better track changes in the knowledge, skills and attitudes of adolescent girls that have the potential to translate into greater agency and more freedom to make their own decisions. Emerging evidence suggests that these interventions are resulting in significant achievements for the adolescent girls who are benefiting from empowerment interventions.

COMMUNITY DIALOGUE AND MOBILIZATION FOR SOCIAL AND BEHAVIOUR CHANGE: Countries have continued to diversify, improve and expand on existing efforts to raise
