Dedication

On 7 April 2014, two UNODC colleagues – Clément Gorrisen and Simon Davis – were cruelly killed in an attack by a gunman in Puntland, Somalia.

Clément, aged 28, and Simon, aged 57, were on mission in Somalia to offer technical advice and to help build local capacities in the specialized field of illicit money flows. Their work, which aimed to ensure that licit money services were available to the Somali people, was crucial in helping those communities dependent on the remittances they receive through money transfer systems.

Clément and Simon were deeply committed to the United Nations' cause and its vision of delivering beneficial change to people and communities in a difficult and complex world. They paid the ultimate sacrifice and it is in their memory that this Annual Report is dedicated.
