THE UN WOMEN GENDER AND ECONOMICS TRAINING MANUAL

© UN Women 2017. All rights reserved.

This training manual on Gender and Economics is the result of extensive collaboration and consultation across UN Women. The preparation of the training manual was led by the Economic Empowerment Team in UN Women. Special thanks to Anuradha Seth and Mamadou Bobo Diallo for providing the leadership and support for this initiative. Invaluable support was provided by UN Women's Training Centre and by the regional economic advisors for Europe & Central Asia and Asia & the Pacific. The contributions of Clemencia Munoz-Tamayo, Nilüfer Çagatay and Francisco Cos-Montiel are duly acknowledged. Thanks are also extended to Gabrielle Leite for production coordination, revision support and her attention to detail.

The training manual benefited from the valuable inputs and feedback received from UN Women regional and country office programme staff: Sabawoon Ahmadzai (Afghanistan), May Babiker (Egypt), Erisa Cela (Albania), Ruangkhao Chanchai (Thailand), Alia El-Yassir (Turkey), Ramon Garlayee Garway (Liberia), Marie Laetitia Kayisire (Guinea Bissau), Jennet Kem (Sudan), Jamaluddin Khan (Pakistan), Loise Maina (Kenya), Enock Mugabi (Kenya), Amna Muharemovic (Bosnia and Herzegovina), Hadil Naser (Palestine), Da Barca Vieira Rosa Ondina Xavier (Mozambique), Dominika Stojanovska (Macedonia), Misrak Tamiru (Ethiopia), and Zhypargul Turmamatova (Kyrgyzstan).

This initiative was made possible by financial support received from the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation (SDC). Their contribution is greatly appreciated.

INTRODUCTION

This manual on gender and economics is intended to provide basic and intermediate level training to development practitioners including governments and policy and programme staff in international development agencies. The overall objective of the course is to strengthen the capacity of technical advisors and programme staff on the importance of gender-responsive economic policy. More specifically, the manual:

- (1) introduces participants to economics in general and presents feminist approaches to macroeconomics, microeconomics and international economics;
- (2) exposes participants to critical analyses of global and regional economic trends, including those related to economic crises;
- (3) enhances the skills of participants in formulating gender-responsive economic policy for programme implementation, policymaking, and advocacy; and
- (4) strengthens the capacity of participants to network with other development practitioners, scholars and policymakers.

The training course is divided into nine modules:

- Module 1: Introduction to Economics
- Module 2: Introduction to Gender-aware Economics and Methods of Analysis
- Module 3: Gender and Macroeconomics
- Module 4: Unpaid Work
- Module 5: Employment, Decent Work and Social Protection
- Module 6: Gender, Income Inequality and Poverty
- Module 7: Gender, Public Finance and Investing for Gender Equality
- Module 8: Gender, Trade and Value Chains
- Module 9: Economic Policymaking and the SDGs: How to Reach the Goals
