In order to respond to the World Health Assembly resolution 60.29 on health technologies, particularly medical devices, Adriana Velazquez Berumen, Senior Advisor on Medical Devices, developed the concept and coordinated the work on the Baseline Country Survey on Medical Devices (under the Global Initiative on Health Technologies) as well as the resulting Global Atlas of Medical Devices. Work began in 2010 within the former Diagnostic Imaging and Medical Devices unit of the WHO Department of Essential Health Technologies, supervised by Steffen Groth, and later continued under the supervision of Gilles Forte within the WHO Department of Essential Medicines and Health Products. The following collaborations were critical to the success of this work.

The organization and implementation of the first launch of the Baseline Country Survey in 2010 was completed with the support of Helena Ardura-Garcia. The re-launch in 2013 was managed by Ricardo Xavier Martinez who was also responsible for the statistical analysis and presentation of results, conception of country profiles and maps, as well as communication with country contacts and the statistical unit of WHO for the dissemination of the data and maps through the Global Health Observatory and the World Health Statistics.

Chapter 1 and the introductions to the Chapter 3 sections were written by Heike Hufnagel with the assistance of Elina Naydenova. Chapters 2 and 4 were written by Ricardo Xavier Martinez.

The survey on health technology assessment as conducted by government or national institutions (section 3.3) was developed in 2015 in the Health Systems and Innovation Cluster within the HTA Ideas Bed initiative on interdepartmental and intercluster collaboration under the overall direction of Marie-Paule Kieny, WHO Assistant Director General for Health Systems and Innovation, coordinated by Adriana Velazquez. Special collaboration on the implementation and first analysis of the survey was received from WHO consultants: Ricardo Martinez, Daniela Rodriguez and Dima Samaha and final report prepared by Suzanne Hill, Kiu Tay-Teo, Alexandra Metherell and Adriana Velazquez.

The desk survey, analyses, and presentation of results for the regulation of medical devices (section 3.2) were done in 2015 and 2016 by Ms Josée Hansen, Senior Advisor, WHO Department of Essential Medicines and Health Products, with assistance of Ms Julia Kuelzow, Ms Melissa Gomez and Ms Sterre Recourt. Special thanks to the staff of the ministries of health and the national regulatory authorities of a number of countries, who kindly provided additional information to the findings of the desk survey.

Thanks to all WHO administrative staff and WHO interns who assisted in this project.

Thanks to all Permanent Missions of Member States in Geneva for their collaboration. Thanks to the six Health Technology Regional Advisers: Adham Rashad Ismail Abdel Moneim, Alexandre Lemgruber, Jean-Bosco Ndiokubwayo, Hanne Bak Pedersen, Gunasena Sunil Senanayake, Klara Tisocki, and their staff for their support in this project. Special thanks go to the staff from the ministries of health who responded to the survey, to the nominated in-country focal points on health technology who gathered the information, to the WHO Representatives and the medicines and technologies staff in country offices, all who are listed below:

Thanks to all the respondents from the ministries of health and governmental agencies of the following Member States who have been providing information from 2011 to 2015.
