Acknowledgements

This document was prepared by the Global Network of WHO Collaborating Centres for Bioethics, managed by Andreas Reis, under the initial leadership of Marie-Charlotte Bouësseau (Ethics and Health Team) and the coordination of Abha Saxena (WHO Global Health Ethics Unit), with the guidance of Najeeb Al-Shorbaji (Director, WHO Department of Knowledge, Ethics, and Research), and Marie-Paule Kieny (WHO Assistant Director-General for the Cluster on Innovation and Research). Carla Saenz, Regional Advisor on Bioethics in the Pan American Health Organization, and Manju Rani, Ethics Focal Point in the WHO Regional Office for the Western Pacific, provided important input.

WHO expresses sincere thanks to the Global Network of Collaborating Centres for Bioethics, led by the Toronto Joint Center for Bioethics, for developing the initial draft document. In particular, the contributions of the following individuals are acknowledged: Nikola Biller-Andorno and Johan Roduit, Institute of Biomedical Ethics and History of Medicine, University of Zurich, Zurich, Switzerland; Amy Fairchild and Ronald Bayer, Center for the History and Ethics of Public Health, Columbia University, New York, NY, USA; Jennifer Gibson, Joint Center for Bioethics, University of Toronto, Toronto, Canada; Ken Goodman and Sergio Litewka, University of Miami Ethics Programs, Miami, FL, USA; Calvin Ho and Alastair Campbell, Center for Biomedical Ethics, National University of Singapore, Singapore; and Michael Selgelid, Center for Human Bioethics, Monash University, Melbourne, Australia.

WHO would like to give special recognition to: Angus Dawson, Medicine, Ethics, Society and History (MESH), University of Birmingham, Birmingham, England, for his helpful support in redrafting some of the sections and the glossary; Carl Coleman of Seton Hall University, Newark, NJ, USA, for his editorial guidance and redrafting; and Dave Johns, Columbia University, New York, USA for editing an earlier version.

The following reviewers provided insightful comments, which strengthened the final draft: Akira Akabayashi, Department of Biomedical Ethics, University of Tokyo Graduate School of Medicine, Tokyo, Japan; Tina Garani-Papadatos, National School of Public Health, Athens, Greece; Eugenijus Gefenas, Department of Medical History and Ethics, Vilnius University, Vilnius, Lithuania; Amar Jesani, Independent consultant, Mumbai, India; Alex J. London, Center for Ethics and Policy, Carnegie Mellon University, Pennsylvania, PA, USA; Florencia Luna, Bioethics Program, Latin American University of Social Sciences and University of Buenos Aires, Buenos Aires, Argentina; Keymanthri Moodley, Centre for Medical Ethics and Law, University of Stellenbosch, Stellenbosch, South Africa; and Cong Yali, Department of Medical Ethics, Beijing University Health Science Center, Beijing, China.

Last but not least, the following WHO staff and interns provided valuable support and input: Vânia de la Fuente-Núñez, Hannah Coakley, Marie-Christine Fritzsche, Sandrine Gehriger, Jasjote Grewal, Corinna Klingler, Patricia Loh, and Amanda Rosenstock.
