FOREWORD

In response to Russia's new role as an emerging donor and in the context of its rapidly changing social, economic and health landscape, the World Health Organization (WHO) and the Ministry of Health of the Russian Federation have developed the document at hand, entitled "Country Cooperation Strategy (CCS) for the World Health Organization and the Ministry of Health of the Russian Federation", for the period of 2014–2020. This CCS has sought out to align Russia's State programme "Health care development" with the WHO European policy framework Health 2020.

The Ministry of Health of the Russian Federation and the WHO have worked together for decades, implementing mutually beneficial activities at the global, regional and national level, sharing best practices and building upon each other's capacities and expertise.

This CCS has been shaped through a series of consultations with representatives of all levels of the Organization, the Government of the Russian Federation, scientific institutions and other international partners in the country. It provides a summary of the current collaboration and underlines the new role of Russia as an increasingly prominent player in global health.

The CCS for WHO and the Ministry of Health of the Russian Federation has four strategic priorities for collaboration, defined as:

- 1. Strengthening capacity for global and regional cooperation in health between the Russian Federation and WHO;*
- 2. Creating a comprehensive environment of prevention and producing health through a life-course approach;*
- 3. Improving health security through capacity-building, and;*
- 4. Strengthening performance of the health system.*

It gives us tremendous pleasure in presenting to you this very comprehensive strategic document.

We take this opportunity to thank all of those involved in developing this CCS, which has the full commitment of the Ministry of Health of the Russian Federation and WHO. We will all be involved in the implementation, monitoring, and evaluation of this CCS and look forward to working with both national counterparts and international partners in advancing the cause of health nationally, regionally and globally.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This CCS is a joint product of WHO and the Ministry of Health of the Russian Federation, with aim to to define strategic collaboration by:

- » meeting needs for health and well-being, strengthening the health system of the Russian Federation and reinforcing health promotion and prevention with WHO's knowledge and technical expertise;
- » supporting the Ministry of Health of the Russian Federation in meeting its commitments to the policy framework of Health 2020;
- » cooperating with the Russian Federation as a donor country in the contexts of European and global health by supporting WHO's role and programmes; and
- » sharing examples and best practices in areas of health with neighbouring countries, the sub-region of eastern Europe and central Asia and the entire WHO European Region.

This is the first CCS for the Russian Federation and covers the period up to 2020. It is aligned with national and European regional policy frameworks, in particular the State programme of the Russian Federation "Health care development" and the WHO European policy framework Health 2020.

The Strategic agenda of this CCS has four strategic priorities for collaboration, defined as:

1. Strengthening capacity for global and regional cooperation in health between the Russian Federation and WHO;
2. Creating a comprehensive environment of prevention and producing health through a life-course approach;
3. Improving health security through capacity-building, and;
4. Strengthening performance of the health system.

The Ministry of Health of the Russian Federation and WHO will work to achieving these strategic priorities within available resources and expertise by implementing mutually beneficial activities at global, regional and national levels, generating added value to each other's health agenda at all three levels.

SECTION 1

Introduction

The country cooperation strategy (CCS) is a medium-term vision for technical cooperation between the World Health Organization (WHO) Secretariat and a given Member State, to support the country's national health policy, strategy, action plan and efforts, aligned with Health 2020, the overarching WHO European health policy framework for health and well-being adopted by all 53 Member States of the European Region in 2012. The CCS is an Organization-wide reference for work with countries in accordance with Health 2020, which guides planning, budgeting, resource allocation and partnerships. A partnership that is true to WHO country cooperation principles is often beneficial to more than one party, through the sharing of knowledge and experience in such a diverse area as health protection and its development.

This CCS is a joint product of WHO and the Ministry of Health of the Russian Federation, which involved extensive consultations among representatives of all levels of the Organization, the Government of the Russian Federation, scientific institutions and other international partners working in the country.

In accordance with the principles guiding WHO cooperation in countries, the CCS with the Russian Federation is based on:

- » ownership of development by the country;
- » alignment with national priorities and strengthening of national systems to support national health policy frameworks;
- » harmonization with the work of national and international partners; and
- » collaboration as a true two-way process that fosters the contributions of the Russian
